—— Preamble of One read, 14 Mar. 16 May.—Oaths contained in One read, 2 May.—Declaration contained in One read, 2 May.

Address, to return His Majesty Thanks for His Speech from the Throne; and to assure Him that the Circumstances under which the House is assembled will not fail to command their most serious Attention: Expressing Satisfaction at the Advantages obtained by the Arms of the Allied Powers, and the Change which has taken Place in the general Situation of Affairs upon the Continent; and particularly congratulating His Majesty on the valuable Possessions acquired from the Enemy, on the undisputed Superiority at Sea, and on the important and decisive Blow which has been given to the Naval Power of His Enemies: That the System from which our Enemies have derived the Means of temporary Exertions, founded as it is upon the Violation of every Principle of Justice, Humanity, and Religion, evidently productive of internal Discontent and Confusion in France, and tending rapidly to exhaust the natural and real Strength of that Country, appears to prove, in the strongest Manner, the Necessity of Vigour and Perseverance on our Part, and to afford in itself a just Expectation of ultimate Success; that the House must undoubtedly join with His Majesty in regretting the necessary Continuance of the War, but are persuaded that it would be inconsistent with the essential Interests of His Majesty's Subjects to look to Restoration of Peace on any Grounds but such as may provide for their permanent Safety, and for the Independence and Security of Europe: Acknowledging His Majesty's Goodness in having directed to be laid before the House Copies of the Declaration which He has thought proper to issue, and of the several Conventions and Treaties He has concluded: Rejoicing that His Majesty has so much Reason to reflect, with Satisfaction, on the steady Loyalty and firm Attachment to the established Constitution and Government, so generally prevalent amongst all Ranks of His Subjects; that the Zeal and Alacrity of the Militia, and the distinguished Bravery and Spirit displayed by His Majesty's Forces by Sea and Land, are the natural Result of these Sentiments, and might well be expected from a brave and free People, animated by the Example of His Majesty's illustrious Progeny, and sensible of the Value of those Blessings which it is the Object of all our Exertions to preserve: That, although the House lament the Necessity of any additional Burthens, they feel it their Duty to make a speedy and ample Provision for the Public Service; and assuring His Majesty, that, in all their Deliberations, they can never lose Sight of the true Grounds and Origin of the War; that the House are sensible that the Discontinuance or Relaxation of our Exertions could hardly procure even a short Interval of delusive Repose, and could never terminate in Security or Peace; and they trust that all His Majesty's Subjects, impressed with the Necessity of defending whatever is most dear to them, and relying with Confidence on the Valour and Resources of their Country, on the combined Efforts of so large a Part of Europe, and above all on the incontestible Justice of their Cause, will study to render their Conduct a Contrast to that of their Enemies, and by cultivating and practising the Principles of Humanity, and the Duties of Religion, endeavour to merit the Continuance of the Divine Favour and Protection, which have been so eminently experienced by these Kingdoms; Amendment proposed, Neg.; Address resolved on; Committee appointed to prepare it; King's Speech referred; 21 Jan. Address reported, and agreed to; to be presented by the whole House; 22. King's Answer, 24.—for usual Estimates, &c. 27 Jan.
